Red Americans and blue Americans not only see the world differently; we see different worlds. Not only can't we agree on what the facts mean, but on what the facts are, even when they're in black & white before our very eyes...

Do you see an America divided nearly evenly, or a broad mandate?

Is that a glowing halo around the President's head, or just the sun?

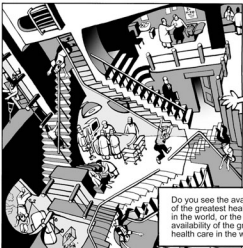

Is the glass half empty or half full?

Do you see a great leader, or a trained monkey?

Do you see two people holding hands, or a threat to your own marriage?

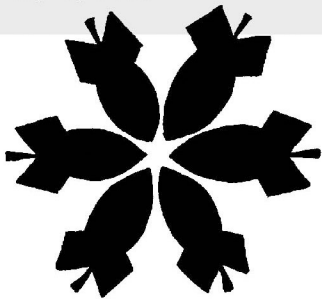

Do you see the availability of the greatest health care in the world, or the lack of availability of the greatest health care in the world?

Do you see super-patriotism, or ultra-nationalism?

Do you see Iraqi WMD and substantive Iraqi links to al Qaeda? Or not?

A hand in a black sleeve holds a crumpled piece of trash, possibly a piece of paper or plastic, against a clear blue sky. Below, a vast landfill is filled with a sea of discarded items. In the background, a yellow front loader and a white truck are visible, working on the waste. The word "TRASH" is superimposed in large, bold, white capital letters across the center of the image.

50TH ANNIVERSARY ✪ CIVIL RIGHTS ACT

Presented by Hubert H. Humphrey School of Public Affairs

CONDOLEEZZA RICE

Distinguished Lecture Series

Thu, Apr 17, 5:00 - 6:00 pm
Carlson Family Stage
Free and open to the public;
ticket reservation required.

Widely considered to be one of the most influential figures in international public life, Condoleezza Rice shares her perspectives on the progress achieved and challenges ahead in efforts to promote civil rights for all. Never one to shy away from controversy, Rice will be taking on her critics with a point-by-point defense of her record, addressing why abandoning international human rights treaties was a difficult, but necessary, decision in the long march toward civil liberties for all.

Condoleezza Rice has been a lightning rod regarding the strategic denial of due process in the case of "bad guys"; her very invitation to campus has provoked controversy. So it shows the strength of the University, and its commitment to the freedom of speech, that she be part of a lecture series explicitly devoted to civil rights. Whether torture is necessarily at odds with the Fourth, Fifth, Eighth, and Fourteenth Amendments is open to discussion, and the University of Minnesota is the ideal place for that discussion. Should an official responsible for torture be tried for war crimes, as our treaties require, or are treaties obsolete?

The 2014 Distinguished Carlson Lecture featuring Condoleezza Rice coincides with the Humphrey School of Public Affairs' reflection on the 50th anniversary of the 1964 Civil Rights Act.

"Never one to shy away from controversy, Rice will be addressing why abandoning international human rights treaties was necessary in the long march toward civil liberties for all."
